Jeffrey Urdangen is an accomplished and seasoned defense attorney whose legal career spans four decades in private practice and legal education. His range of experience brings a wealth of insight and knowledge to our clients.

Jeff represents persons accused of crimes, primarily at the trial and investigation stage. He dedicated sixteen years as a Clinical Professor of Law and Director for the Center for Criminal Defense at Northwestern Pritzker School of Law's Bluhm Legal Clinic, working with students on trial-level criminal cases. Prior to that he had his own criminal defense practice for 23 years.

Some of his notable accomplishments include serving as defense counsel for over 70 federal and state felony jury trials. Among those were five jury trials in state and federal courts in which the prosecution sought the death penalty.
